

Our financial partners are very concerned with the declining penalty rate and it may cause some projects not to move forward. While the predictability of the new proposal is good for planning, the declining penalty rate (5%/year after 2013) is too aggressive. They feel a 2.5% decline similar to what NJ has in place would be more reasonable.